Program Review Meeting

Morgantown, WV

The U.S. Department of Energy's National Energy Technology Laboratory (NETL) invites you to attend the Vision 21 Program Review Meeting on November 6-7, 2001, at the National Energy Technology Laboratory in Morgantown, West Virginia.

Vision 21 is the U.S. Department of Energy's new initiative for developing the technology necessary for ultra-clean fossil fuel-based energy plants that will be needed in the coming decades of the 21st century. The goal is to effectively remove all of the environmental concerns traditionally associated with the use of fossil fuels for producing electricity and transportation fuels or chemicals.

Achieving this goal will require an intensive, long-range research and development effort that stresses innovation and revolutionary technologies. If Vision 21 is successful, the United States, and the world, will have new methods of fossil-based power generation that will have significant advantages over current methods.

Vision 21 Drivers

- Growing demand, particularly for electricity, both in the U.S. and worldwide.
- Recognition that fossil energy needs to be a part of the future energy mix.
- Concern about the environment, including global climate change.
- Restructuring of the energy industry with new players open to multiple feedstocks and products, and an underinvestment in research and technology development.
- Uncertain natural gas prices.
- Recognition of the value of "future options," such as the hydrogen economy.

The Vision 21 Program Review Meeting will be held at the U.S. Department of Energy's National Energy Technology Laboratory, located at 3610 Collins Ferry Road, Morgantown, West Virginia.
